

Nobody for President

Hard to swallow

Nobody

Scott Campbell

No Carter, no Reagan, yes Nobody!

I've met nobody who would be perfect for president. At least I think I did. And the campaign to elect nobody to the office of president of the United States has reached Austin. Nobody is here, right now in Austin and there will be a rally today at 12 noon on the West Mall to further nobody's campaign.

Though it is doubtful that nobody is better than Carter, Reagan or Anderson nobody has quite an impressive list of credentials and accomplishments. To name a few:

1. Nobody has freed the hostages.
2. Nobody has been able to bring peace to the world.

3. Nobody knows the answers to inflation.

4. Nobody has kept all campaign promises.

Yes, given a chance, nobody can do anything as president of the United States of America. Nobody couldn't possibly have been as warped as Richard Nixon or as bland as Ford or as inept as Jimmy Carter.

Which is why Wavy Gravy, Curtis Spangler and entourage are campaigning for nobody. Wavy is nobody's fool, and Curtis is nobody's campaign manager. They were here on the University of Texas campus almost exactly four years ago for the 1976 Nobody for President campaign rally. The rally was sponsored by the defunct Arts & Sausages, and it was a rousing success. Lots of people showed up to support nobody.

Today's rally will feature music by Gary P. Nunn, various speeches for nobody and a debate between nobody and John Kelso, Austin's native son candidate for president. Kelso has refused to debate nobody but that won't deter nobody from debating. Hell, nobody really debated at the League of Women Voters' debate.

The presidency is an immensely powerful and all consuming office. We have all seen what happens to the men who occupy the office. Power corrupts and distorts. Nobody should have that much power.

So, if you're dissatisfied with who is running for president why not support nobody and come to today's rally. Remember, if nobody is elected, nobody will serve.

Monday, October 27, 1980 □ THE DAILY TEXAN

Firing Line

Nobody's business

Nobody cares about me. Nobody loves me. Nobody wants me around. How fortunate I am — because nobody will be president in 1980.

All my life I've desired a White House position. Thanks to nobody I'll now gain it. With nobody in the Oval Office, optimism will abound in America. Nobody has a sound economy structure. Nobody has a workable tax program. Nobody has the answers to foreign policy. Nobody knows the key to storing nuclear wastes. A "guided future" is assured in 1980 because nobody cares about this country.

You too can better control your life with nobody as president. How fortunate the University of Texas is to have a rally on its West Mall and nobody will speak. Nobody will provide the solutions to the campus "War on Mediocrity."

Once you've heard nobody orate, you'll know you are nobody's fool and that nobody should be president.

Jeff Delvaux
Liberal Arts